

New Hospital Website – September 2003

Two local businesses have worked together in collaboration with Noble's Hospital management to create a website for the new hospital. Communication specialists Mainstream Media and web design company Arts Interactive, in association with PDMS, linked with hospital manager Frank Inman on the website's creation.

The website represents the second phase of a project originally set up to devise an educational CD-Rom for all Noble's employees.

Noble's hospital manager Frank Inman said:

As the largest capital project to date in the Island, the building of the new Noble's Hospital successfully brought together an enormous diversity of professionals to create this state-of-the-art facility which will serve the people of the Isle of Man for many generations to come. One of our prime objectives was always to ensure the hospital was a user-friendly as possible. To this end, the new website will prove an invaluable resource.
